We Are the Church

We often say “We are going to church” in the same way we would say “We are going to the cinema.” We talk about church as a location, a destination, a place we go to. But there is a fundamental difference between “going to church” and “being the church.” We can say “We are the Church” but we would never say “We are the cinema” because the cinema is a location. Church is not just somewhere we go on Sundays. Church is so much more than a location.

But why is this distinction important? If we believe that going to church and being the church are one and the same, we might be lulled into the false sense that attending church is the same thing as being a follower of Jesus. They are not the same thing. Being a Jesus follower is a call to give up our own agendas and to take up God’s agenda. God’s agenda for his church is that we deny ourselves and take up our cross and follow him into the world where he is at work. This looks very different from going to church on Sundays. Going to church does not demand your whole life to be given to Jesus. Going to church demands about two hours of your life each week, and for many that means once or twice a month.

The inherent danger in being a “church attender” rather than a “Christ follower” is we forget that it’s all about Jesus and his mission. It’s not about us. When we forget this, our churches stop looking like Christ-centred gatherings and more like self-centred clubs.

We start to complain about the heating or the seating, or the songs we sing, or the building, or the sermon – forgetting that there are people all around us who have never heard the good news of the gospel, who are living in hopelessness every day. Instead of gathering to be equipped to “go” into the world as Jesus has gone, we miss the point and think we are gathering to be “fed” to meet our own needs.

Let me get serious for a moment. Here is a question I have been wrestling with all my Christian life: How can a loving God sit back and watch as children starve in a world full of food, watch them die from diseases that are easily treatable, and watch them be trafficked into sex slavery? How can God just sit back and watch humanity’s unspeakable suffering?

The only response I have is not an easy response to accept, but here it is: God isn’t sitting back and doing nothing. He has commanded his church and equipped and empowered them with the Holy Spirit to go and make a difference.

The shocking truth is that we are not being the church. We are consumed with going to church and putting our energies into “doing” church while evil and human suffering abounds all around us, even in our own villages.

The Apostle James writes, “Religion that God our Father accepts as pure and faultless is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress and keep oneself from being polluted by the world.” (James 1:27)

We can’t confront all the evil in the world, but we can do something. And it begins by asking God, “Who are those in distress around me?” Then realize God has put you right where you are to be his hands and feet and hope for the least and the last and the lost.
